MILWAUKEE – (May 11, 2018) – This morning, Local Letter Carriers, TV personalities, elected officials and Hunger Task Force partners competed in the annual Letter Carrier Olympics to kick off Stamp Out Hunger. The obstacle course served as an exciting prelude for tomorrow’s food drive, where Hunger Task Force has set a goal to collect 500,000 pounds of food.

This year marks the 26th consecutive year of the National Association of Letter Carriers’ Stamp Out Hunger food drive, the country’s largest single-day drive. The public is encouraged to fill any bag with healthy nonperishable foods and leave it by their mailbox tomorrow morning for their letter carrier to pick up on their regular mail route schedule.

Instead of simply emptying items from the back of the pantry, the public is asked to donate healthy nonperishable food items such as peanut butter, breakfast cereal, tuna and canned fruits and vegetables in their donation bags. As the first MyPlate food bank in the country, Hunger Task Force aims to distribute only healthy, nutritious foods to its network of 74 food pantries, soup kitchens and homeless shelters.

“Stamp Out Hunger is such an easy way for Milwaukee families to be generous and help their hungry neighbors,” said Sherrie Tussler, executive director of Hunger Task Force. “You don’t even have to leave your house – just fill a bag with some healthy food and put it out by your mailbox Saturday morning. We’ve got some strong and dedicated Letter Carriers here in Milwaukee who are up for the challenge, doing double-duty all day long.”

Stamp Out Hunger is sponsored locally by the National Association of Letter Carriers, Kohl’s, Rexnord and the local United Food & Commercial Workers union. Dunkin Donuts also provided in-kind support, supporting the cups-stacking challenge during the Letter Carrier Olympics and gifting more than 1,000 donuts to our local Letter Carriers to thank them for their hard work.
"We're proud to have an opportunity to support our letter carriers as they contribute to this very worthwhile cause," said Vishal Patel, Dunkin' Donuts manager, Manvee CML. "Certainly in the communities in which we work and live, we see families in need. This provides us with a convenient, beneficial way to help, and we're happy to do so."

Media are invited to capture the action tomorrow by visiting the Letter Carriers along their routes and local Hunger Task Force volunteers at Post Offices throughout Milwaukee.
